

Jim Barnes
President and CEO

"enVista's passion and success lies in our ability to help clients avoid, reduce and contain costs across their enterprise," said Jim Barnes, President and CEO of enVista.

Jim Barnes co-founded enVista in 2002 in response to market demand for comprehensive supply chain cost management services. Barnes is considered the leading expert in enterprise cost management from source to consumption. He has spent the last 20 years successfully deploying supply chain and enterprise solutions and synchronizing material and information flow for Fortune 500 companies.

His expertise includes all areas within the supply chain, including global supply chain network design, strategic facility design, international and domestic transportation management, labor management, warehouse management and enterprise solutions.
