

ENDICIA

ABOUT OUR COMPANY

Endicia Internet Postage has over 25 years of postal industry experience, and as the leading provider of Internet Postage, we bring our customers reliability, efficiency and customer service that is second to none. Endicia allows users to print pre-paid U.S. Postal Service shipping labels directly from a PC, Mac or API. Endicia allows companies to take advantage of the substantial savings of U.S. Postal Service shipping with the ease-of-use of a commercial shipping software system. Our solutions include stand-alone desktop shipping tools, database integration, Web services, customizable APIs and integration into over 70 third-party applications.

Endicia was the first company to offer Windows-based presort mailing software, WYSIWYG mail-piece design software, Internet address verification, Internet move updating, Internet postage with electronic Delivery Confirmation and Internet postage for International Mail. We invented and patented technology for remote address verification, the personal postage system and the virtual postage meter. In 1989, we received the first annual U.S. Postal Service Quality Supplier Award, and in 2004, the Industry Star Award.

Endicia's PC and Mac applications allow users to print postage and shipping labels for all mail classes available at the USPS retail counter, domestic and international. Our shipping functionality includes discounted Delivery Confirmation or Signature Confirmation, discounted insurance, hidden postage amounts, address verification and pre-filled customs forms.

Customers using Endicia will automatically save when printing Express Mail and Priority Mail postage. For Express Mail, customers save five percent from the USPS retail counter rates, and when printing Priority Mail, customers automatically save 4.7%. All Endicia customers have access to Commercial Base prices, and high-volume customers using Endicia to print their postage can save even more. Commercial Plus pricing, announced by the USPS in January, allows customers to save 14.5% on Express Mail and seven percent on Priority Mail.

Endicia and the U.S. Postal Service have formed a partnership that enables high-volume shippers of expedited services to be eligible for free Endicia services and shipping software solutions. This is in addition to the discounted commercial postage rates that are currently available through Endicia shipping solutions.
